About Oregon Commission for the Blind

Oregon Commission for the Blind (OCB)'s mission statement is: "Empower Oregonians Who are Blind to Fully Engage in Life." Our vision statement is "Blindness without Barriers."

Services are provided statewide, with counselors and teachers meeting with individuals in their home communities throughout the state.

OCB assists eligible Oregonians with vision loss in making informed choices to achieve full inclusion in society through employment, independent living, and social self-sufficiency.

We do this by providing:

- A continuum of services from youth transition to older blind services, including skills training that enables people to remain independent in their homes and communities.
- Individual and group counseling addressing adjustment to blindness.
- Employment counseling, training, and job placement.

- Resources for employers interested in hiring or retaining employees with vision loss.
- Training in adaptive skills for reading, computer use, traveling, job seeking, and other skills, which increase independence and employment for persons experiencing vision loss.
- Public education on the abilities of people who are blind or visually impaired.
- Supported employment programs for people who experience vision loss along with other disabilities.
- A registry of Oregonians who are legally blind, and a clearinghouse for Oregonians seeking information and referral regarding blindness and visual impairment.

The Commission for the Blind's clients are:

- Oregonians who experience legal blindness and/or visual impairments, and require rehabilitation services to be employed or to live independently in their community. The majority of these individuals experience vision loss as adults due to a variety of conditions such as diabetes, macular degeneration, retinitis pigmentosa, or injury.
- Businesses in Oregon who have or are considering hiring legally blind employees.

- The taxpayers of Oregon who benefit from persons with vision loss being fully integrated into their communities. Taxpayers also benefit from individuals who experience blindness entering employment and paying taxes while decreasing or eliminating their dependence on public assistance, including but not limited to premature nursing home care.

Board of Directors

The Oregon Commission for the Blind Board consists of seven members who are appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate. To ensure the commission is consumer driven, it is required that four members are persons with vision loss that meet the legal definition of blindness. Three members are appointed from the areas of business, labor, optometry, ophthalmology, or education (with a focus on low/no vision).

If you would like to know the current members of the Commission Board, please contact the main office at: 971-673-1588 or toll-free in Oregon 888-202-5463 or visit:

www.oregon.gov/blind/whoweare/Pages/boardmembers.aspx.

Oregon Revised Statutes and Laws

Structure of Government Body

ORS 346.110 to 346.570

Under these statutes OCB is responsible for the administration of programs and services for the blind.

White Cane Law

ORS 811.03514, 811.110, and 814.120

These laws grant and enforce the rights of pedestrians who are blind or blind and deaf. Under these laws a person may carry and use a white cane on streets and other public places for the purposes of identification and mobility. All drivers must yield to pedestrians using a white cane.

Dog Guide Law

ORS 346.610 and 236.621

These laws give persons with vision loss the right to have their guide dogs with them in any place of public accommodation or on any mode of transportation as long as the person with vision impairment controls the behavior of the dog.

Signature Stamps

Under Oregon law a person who is blind may use a signature stamp when witnessed by a notary public. The notary types "stamped before me by...." Most businesses including banks accept documents signed with a signature stamp. A statement of responsibility may need to be supplied to a bank before they will accept checks signed with a signature stamp. Signature stamps are available from stamp and stationary stores.

Guide Dog Schools

Many schools provide dogs nationally and do not base eligibility on location. However most schools require students to attend onsite training for several weeks, which is sometimes followed up by training in the student's home community. They provide the training, room, board, and dog at no cost to the student. Many also provide financial assistance for the dog's feeding and healthcare. Some schools also provide dogs to students who have additional disabling conditions. To learn about dog guides and a school's particular training and services, contact each directly.

News and Current Events

NFB-NEWSLINE®

NFB-NEWSLINE®, developed by the National Federation of the Blind, is an easy-to-use telephone service that reads all the text from various newspapers across the country, as well as localized emergency alerts, job listings, a special account for children, TV listings, and COVID-19 updates. Anyone who cannot read printed publications due to vision loss, dyslexia, or a physical disability is eligible for this free service. Some Oregon newspapers currently available are The Oregonian, The Statesman Journal, and the Oregon AP Newswire.

Users need only a touch-tone phone and a PIN number to access a national toll-free number. By following a touch-tone menu, users can access different sections of the newspaper and even choose a preferred reading voice.

This service is also available via email and web, as well as on mobile devices via the NFB Newslines App, Amazon's Alexa, portable digital media audio players, and NLS BARD Refreshable Braille eReaders.

The staff at Talking Book and Braille Services can sign up their registered users to use NFB-NEWSLINE® over the telephone; call 800-452-0292. Or email talkingbooks.info@slo.oregon.gov. You will be assigned a PIN number and a security code to gain access.

Learn more here: <https://nfb.org/programs-services/nfb-newsline>

Funding for this service is provided by Oregon Commission for the Blind, National Federation for the Blind of Oregon, and the State Library's Talking Book and Braille Services.

Parking Permits for Disabled Persons

Recreation

ODFW Oregon Disabilities Hunting and Fishing Permit

Offered by the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife (ODFW), this free permit enables anglers to fish from an anchored craft, access many fishing sites reserved for persons with disabilities, and use an electric powered reel. It allows legally blind hunters to hunt with a designated shooter and hunt from a motor vehicle on a public road.

Please note this permit is not a license or tag; those must still be purchased as appropriate at regular rates. Both Oregon residents and non-residents may apply. Although it is free, it must be renewed every five years; permanent angling and hunting permits have been eliminated. Disabled veterans are encouraged to inquire about free Disabled Veteran Licenses.

The permit application is available online, at sporting goods stores, at any ODFW office that sells licenses, or by calling Salem ODFW at 503-947-6101. Mail applications to:

AmeriCorps Senior Companion Program

This program brings active volunteers over 55 years of age together with seniors who have difficulty with daily living tasks, such as shopping or paying bills. The assistance and friendship AmeriCorps Seniors volunteers provide keeps seniors independent longer and gives respite to family caregivers. Volunteers themselves also report better health and longevity having served their community.

There is no central hub for requesting the help of a volunteer; instead contact your local Area Agency on Aging below to learn what nonprofits in your area are participating. To learn about applying to be a volunteer, visit the Americorps website.

Tax Preparation Assistance

The IRS, in conjunction with a variety of nonprofit organizations and tax software vendors, provides free tax preparation services to qualifying taxpayers. Free Tax Preparation options include e-filing with direct deposit of refunds – the fastest, most secure way for taxpayers to file their return and receive refunds. Three IRS-sponsored programs are listed below: the Facilitated Self-Assistance model, the Volunteer Tax Assistance program, and the Alternative Media Center.

Facilitated Self-Assistance Model (FSA)

Using this free tax preparation option, taxpayers use a do-it-yourself model to prepare their own returns with the assistance of a certified volunteer and self-preparation software. Assistance may be provided via tax coach, helpline or online chat services. Below are two ways to use this program:

1. MyFreeTaxes provides self-paced, step-by-step guidance to file tax returns online.

www.myfreetaxes.com/

2. Freefile is available in two formats:

- FreeFile software – Self-paced, step-by-step guidance to file tax returns online.

- FreeFile fillable forms – Fillable forms for tax filers to complete their taxes and e-file.
<http://www.irs.gov/filing/free-file-do-your-federal-taxes-for-free>

Volunteer Income Tax Assistance Program

The Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program offers free tax help to qualified individuals who generally make $54,000 or less, persons with disabilities, and limited English-speaking taxpayers who need assistance in preparing their tax returns. IRS-certified volunteers provide free basic income tax return preparation with electronic filing.

Utilities

Many utility companies have special services and discounts for customers with disabilities and/or low-income customers. There are also state-funded assistance programs administered regionally through nonprofits. Always ask your utility company if they have, or can direct you to, any programs or discounts that may apply to you!

Affordable Connectivity Program

This FCC benefit program helps ensure that households can afford the broadband they need for work, school, healthcare and more. It provides a discount of up to $30 per month toward internet service for eligible households and up to $75 per month for households on qualifying Tribal lands.

Eligible households can also receive a one-time discount of up to $100 to purchase a laptop, desktop computer, or tablet from participating providers if they contribute more than $10 and less than $50 toward the purchase price.

Voting

Forms and Pamphlets

Voter registration forms are available in post offices, public libraries, online, telephone blue pages, and the Oregon Commission for the Blind. An audible version of the Voter's Pamphlet is available through Talking Book and Braille Services, at 800-452-0292 or email talkingbooks.info@slo.oregon.gov.

Please visit <https://www.droregon.org/voting-rights> for further information regarding use of an Alternate Format Ballot, as well as accessibility features that include screen-readers and text-enlargers.

Ballot Tracking

Track the status of your mail-in ballot from printed to accepted with an accessible and free process.

Four Oregon counties have Ballot Tracking:

- Multnomah
<https://multnomah.ballottrax.net/voter/>
- Marion
https://marioncountyclerk.ballottrax.net/voter/login#
- Washington
<https://washcovotes.ballottrax.net/voter/>
- Yamhill

<https://yamhillcounty.ballottrax.net/voter/>

The voter provides full name, date of birth, zip code, and desired notification method. The CAPTCHA system used to ensure your response is human (and not an online robot) is a simple and accessible check mark. If there is a problem with your signature, you will be notified within a day. The percentage of successful voters with Ballot Tracking is very high, and anyone can help a voter get signed up.

Tips Guide

These tips are simply methods that persons with visual impairments have discovered for performing everyday household tasks. Most likely you will develop your own system for getting things done. We hope these tips will get you started.

There is also a section to share with your family and friends to let them know how they can be of assistance to you.

Training in these and many other techniques is available through the Oregon Commission for the Blind.

Using Equipment and Appliances

Telling Time

Talking clocks are available at many major stores or through catalogs. If you prefer to read the time, you can purchase a clock with large numbers or a Braille watch. Another potential method for telling time is to buy an inexpensive alarm clock and pry the face off so that the clock hands may be read with your fingers.

Reading Temperatures, Scales, and Other Measuring Devices

Talking thermometers scales, calculators, and other devices are available at many stores or through mail order catalogs.

Setting Thermostats and Appliance Dials

You can mark thermostats and dials on stoves, washers, dryers, televisions, and other appliances by placing tactile dots of silicone caulking or plastic on dial settings. The dial is set by matching one of these dots with a dot placed on the backboard above the dial at the "On" location. Place these dots at frequently used settings. These can be used as reference points to estimate other settings. If desired, use a color that contrasts with the appliance to enhance visibility. Two products ideal for marking dials and other household equipment are silicone caulking which is available at most hardware stores and a product called Hi-Marks, which is available at many stores and at OCB. Hi-Marks is a tube of soft plastic that hardens on application. The plastic is bright orange and can be read by sight or touch.

There is also a product called HALOS tactile icons that are shapes that represent common features on four common home appliances -- microwave, oven, washer, keypad – as well as a general home kit. They can be applied directly to a touch surface control panel, identifying both the location and the function of an appliance feature.

<https://www.tangiblesurfaceresearch.com/halos>

Handling Finances

Identifying Money

Coins can be identified by feeling the size and edges. You can tell quarters and dimes by their ridges, and nickels and pennies by their smooth edges. Bills can then be identified by placing ones unfolded in your wallet, fives folded once lengthwise, tens folded once widthwise, and twenties folded twice, once lengthwise and once widthwise. Larger bills and one dollar bills could be placed in separate compartments of your wallet or purse.

Free Currency Reader

In advance of issuing tactile-enhanced Federal Reserve notes, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing (BEP) is providing currency readers, free of charge, to eligible blind and visually impaired individuals. All U.S. citizens or persons legally residing in the U.S. who are blind or visually impaired can request a free currency reader by downloading the application at the site below:

www.bep.gov/uscurrencyreaderform.html

Writing Checks

A check-writing stencil and signature guide may help in filling out checks and signing your name. These can be obtained by contacting OCB. Many banks furnish raised line or large print checks for customers who are visually impaired. Check with your bank to see if they provide this service.

Preparing Meals

Identifying Packaged Foods

Food products can be identified through a variety of simple methods. Make a habit of keeping different kinds of products on different shelves. For example, place canned vegetables on the top shelf and canned fruits on the bottom. Place rubber bands on similar canned goods to distinguish one can from another. For example, use one rubber band for creamed corn and two for whole kernel corn. Or place a rubber band at the top of a can of tomato soup and in the middle of the can of chicken noodle soup. If you can read larger print, try making a large print label to wrap around the cans. Other labeling methods are magnetic toy letters, magnetic tape with raised large print or braille letters, or nail polish.

There are also stand-alone devices and iDevice applications that will take a picture and read the items aloud. The PenFriend audio labeler is also a great tool for this task. This revolutionary labelling system was designed for anyone who cannot see. Labelling everything from your CD collection to frozen foods is literally as easy as 1, 2, 3 ...

www.braillebookstore.com/PenFriend-Audio-Labeler.1

Organizing Cooking Materials

Place equipment and ingredients on a large tray of a color that contrasts with your work surface to keep objects from rolling, spilling, or becoming misplaced. You may want to use a second tray as a workspace or transfer each item after it has been used.

Pouring

Liquids can be poured into a cup or glass without spilling by using one of several methods:

1. Use weight as a guide by judging the weight of the container when empty and then when full.
2. Place index finger in the glass up to the first knuckle. When the liquid reaches your fingertip, stop pouring.

3. When pouring very hot or cold liquids, place your hand on the outside of the container to feel the level rise.
4. For hot liquids, measure while cold, pour into saucepan, heat and return to the cup.
5. Purchase a device equipped with a sound alert indicator to let you know when the liquid level nears the top of a container such as:
www.rehabmart.com/category/liquid_indicator.htm

Using Recipes

Record your favorite recipes or write them out in large print using a felt tip pen or print them out on a computer. Recorded, large-print, and braille cookbooks are also available.

Personal Care

Identifying Clothing

Organize clothes by locations in closet and drawers. Some items can be identified by texture, style, or by details such as button shapes. Identify the color of clothes by attaching a tactile labeling device. Commonly used labels are clothing tags with raised marks and small safety pins placed in the waistband or collar. Use small safety pins to match socks. Pins placed in specific area of socks can be used to determine color. For example, pinning socks at the toe might designate blue and at the heel might designate brown. Pin socks together before washing to keep pairs matched. The PenFriend audio labeler is also a great tool for identifying clothing.

www.braillebookstore.com/PenFriend-Audio-Labeler.1

Sewing

When sewing or mending take advantage of widely used products such as self-threading needles, Velcro fasteners and Stitch Witchery.

Identifying Medicines

Use many of the same techniques that you use to label food to identify medicine containers. The different sizes and shapes of the containers may also be of help. ScripTalk Station provides those who cannot read the information on their prescriptions a safe and easy way to manage their personal healthcare. Simply press a button and place the special Talking Label over the reader. A pleasant natural sounding voice speaks all the information printed on the label. To learn more:

Tips for Interacting with Family, Friends and Others

Because many people are uncertain of the needs of individuals who are visually impaired, they can be awkward and uncomfortable when spending time with you. You can help clear up this awkwardness by stating your needs as plainly as possible. Here are some tips on how you might do this in several common situations.

Receiving Assistance

Tell others that if they think you might need assistance, they should simply ask if they can be helpful and how. Ask them not to make assumptions about your needs. By making this request, you are asking others for the same courtesy they would extend to anyone.

Walking with a Sighted Person

Instead of allowing others to grab onto you while you are walking with them, you will find that it is both safer and more comfortable for you to hold onto their elbow. Let others know that this is your preference and demonstrate for them how this technique works. Grasp their arm above the elbow gently but firmly. Walk slightly behind them so that you can follow their motions. Let them know that physical cues are usually all that are necessary to signal where they are going and that verbal explanations usually are not needed.

Receiving Directions

Let people know what type of information you wish to receive. Let them know that specific terms such as "right," "left," "north," "west," are better than pointing or saying "over there." Ask clerks in stores to take you directly to the aisle and not to say "in aisle four."

Conversing

You may find that others are at first uncertain about how to speak with you. They may address their comments to your sighted companions rather than speak directly to you. Or they may speak more loudly than usual. Let them know that if they wish to get your attention, they should simply address you by name.

Pedestrian Safety Tips

Being a pedestrian in a world full of cars and bicycles is daunting. Being a pedestrian who is blind in this environment takes some extra precautions to ensure you arrive at your destination without any close calls. Here are some tips and reminders for those walking with low or no vision, especially during winter's shorter, darker and wetter days.

1. Think about the time of day you are planning to travel. Can you adjust your trip to arrive at your destination before it is dark? Keep in mind that drivers are less likely to see you if their vision is impaired by rain and low light conditions.
2. In the fall remember daylight saving time and adjust your thinking to the fact that it is now dark an hour earlier.
3. Talking on your phone or listening to music prevents your ability to listen for traffic.
4. Keep in mind that although intersections are where you normally encounter cars crossing your path, driveways or parking lots are often more hazardous. When cars are backing up the driver is typically looking in their rear-view mirror where they see only your upper torso. This excludes them from seeing your long cane or dog guide.

5. If you walk with a cane, use a prominent arc prior to initiating your crossings.
6. If you encounter a running car that is blocking the sidewalk it is better to knock on the window and talk to the driver (or take an alternative route) than pass behind a running car.
7. If your route requires you to walk in the street due to no sidewalks, walk on the side of the road so that oncoming traffic is nearest you. The curb will be immediately on your left.
8. While walking on a sidewalk or road edge, stop walking and stay stationary, in a safe place, if a siren is passing or there is a loud noise blocking your ability to hear oncoming cars.
9. If you have a choice, choose a route with streetlights.
10. Wear reflective clothing! Recent studies show wrist and upper arm bands pick up the swing and movement associated with a person walking. Wearing reflective clothing on the top half of your body is most important because drivers typically only see the top half. Reflective gear is now affordable and easy to find, from gloves, hats, vests, to adhesive reflective tape and hanging reflective tabs.
