14:47:15 From Clark Hazel (they/them) : Well said!
14:47:22 From Diane Benavides Wille (she/her/hers) : I think there's a difference between a program participant to provide feedback for program evaluation and feedback informed treatment which is about alignment, about their concerns being taken seriously and services focused on what the client is wanting and asking for (person centered care).

14:48:15 From Tim Nesbitt (he/him) OHA : We can also evaluate administrative burden of a program to reduce it for the future.
14:54:50 From Amanda Winters : some of my takeaways: there is a need to measure real impact, reduce administrative burden, provide transparency of process, create actionable data (identifying those metrics/analyses that can speak to the needs of practitioners as well as other compliance requirements), can we make program evaluation practical and usable for key stakeholders?
