

1 2. Investigation determined that on June 13, 2018, Martin completed an online
2 application for renewal of a Restricted Teaching License. On June 30, 2018, the 3 Commission gave Martin a ninety (90) day grace period to complete her application.
4 On August 7, 2018, the Commission sent Martin notice of an incomplete application
5 notice which provided a list of documents that Martin needed to submit for her 6 application to continue being processed. On September 12, 2018, the Commission 7 received most of the documents. On October 28, 2018, Martin contacted the 8 Commission and was reminded to submit a missing document. On October 29, 2018, 9 Martin's grace period expired. On November 12, 2018, having failed to receive all the 10 documents necessary to process Martin's application, the Commission closed her 11 application and sent Martin notice of this action. In the notice was a statement which 12 read, "...this means that you (Martin) no longer have a valid Restricted License and 13 cannot be in the classroom." From October 30, 2018, through the end of the 2018-
14 2019 school year, Martin taught without a valid Commission license. On June 13, 15 2019, Martin contacted the Commission regarding her license and confirmed she 16 had taught the entire 2018-2019 school.
